A Remarkable Case of Surgery. We have no reason to doubt the entire correctness of the statement made in an account of a recent iridectomy, a modern surgery, communicated to the Chicago Tribune this morning, by Dr. G. L. Beebe of Chicago, who achieved it, in which the patient was completely blind in one eye, and in the other had only the faintest glimmering of the intensity of that of Miss J. E. Curtis, of Lee Center, Ill., was effected, and the life of the patient preserved. The case was originally one of umbilical hernia, which was easily reduced, but the surgeon made mistakes for something else, as when Dr. Beebe first saw it, the tumor was large, greatly discolored, and on the point of giving way by the pressure of a considerable quantity of fluid, and the life of the patient was in imminent danger. The constitutional symptoms were such as to leave no doubt as to the nature of the case, so the doctor set about performing relief as was possible.

After a series of operations showed that a large mass of the intestines had been pushed through a hole in the abdominal cavity, and being there constipated by the constant accumulation of feces matter, had become greatly distended, Dr. Beebe freed a portion of the intestine and followed it back in each direction to the hernial ring, as one would find the two ends of a string held in the hand by the middle, and found that the part involved in the disease was four feet and ten inches in length. To return it to the cavity of the abdomen would have been fatal; to remove it would, almost of necessity, have been equally fatal, and the latter was the opinion of Dr. Beebe. He applied the knife and after having enlarged the ring, brought the severed ends of the intestine to its margin and then secured them by suture and through the ring, as in the first, the anatomical nature of the patient was discharged.

After the expiration of three weeks the constitutional disturbance consequent upon the surgical operation had subsided, and the process to unite the severed ends of intestine by means of a highly ingenious and, as the result proved, an effective contrivance, the description of which our friend has given us, from the original paper published in the Medical Times, will be given in full.
